

AARAMBH's Street Play social Communication group

We Create and perform theme-based Community and School Awareness by our experienced Youth Professionals

Street plays have long been recognized as one of the most powerful tools for social communication and spreading social and educational awareness generation in the community and schools. AARAMBH as a Social Development organization with a vast experience of 33 Years in Urban and Rural population draws on this practice to reach communities where it matters most for the Children, families and the community at large in delivering clear messages on the complex issues which is not just accessible to the large audience but also in achieving meaningful positive social change.

AARAMBH's trained professional team through their performance's links cultural and educational gaps, making complex health and social messages relevant and actionable for underserved populations. Our team not only disseminate educative information but also energize community engagement, encouraging audiences to adopt healthier practices and make informed decisions. For feedback exchange our team also organize community-based meetings to open up ways for post-performance discussion with the audience.

You may give an opportunity to our dedicated professional youth team members to perform differently and hire their services. For more details you may contact us through email: aarambhresource@gmail.com

Contact us at: aarambhresource@gmail.com